

HUNDLEY INDUSTRIES NEW WOOD GMA PALLETS U.S.A. INVENTORY – ARRIVING WEEKLY

THE PROBLEM

Recently the Produce Marketing Association sent an alert to members regarding the current pallet shortage.

“We’ve spoken to executives from CHEP USA and PECO Pallets and they both have reported their companies are facing challenges in supplying pallets to their customers. Here is the situation:

1. There is a lumber shortage in the U.S. due to COVID shutting down the lumber mills for weeks.
2. The surge in new house and renovation construction is consuming most of the wood available from the mills.
3. The price for lumber is at an all-time high.
4. Distributors, wholesale and retail inventories are very high for nonperishable product which is on pallets in their warehouses and distribution centers.

All PMA members should plan on this situation not being resolved in the near term. Secure any pallet you can and inform your customers that they may receive their shipment on a non-preferred pallet until this situation is resolved.”
